LOS ANGELES, CA. June 7, 2010—A starburst of A-Listers join forces with host Patrick Kilpatrick of Uncommon Dialogue Films to benefit City of Hope Marrow Donor Program at the '2010 Hollywood Shotgun Sporting Clays Invitational.' Triple B Shotgun Sporting Park is the backdrop for this star-studded competition on Saturday October 9th in Los Angeles, California.

200+ International Shooters and 40 Top Global Celebrities will enjoy a fun-filled day of World Class eco-friendly Sporting Clays shooting to benefit the City of Hope Bone Marrow Donor Program. The City of Hope Mobile Bone Marrow Testing Unit will be on-hand for celebrities and event participants to be entered into the national registry with the ultimate goal of finding a match for an adult or child in need of bone marrow, or stem-cell treatment.

Of all the shooting sports, Sporting Clays is the most contemporary. Twenty-five teams of ten compete against one another in the day-long extravaganza to achieve the highest point total. Attendees rotate from station to station – much like a golf course – to shoot bio-degradable clay saucers launched at varying speeds, angles, heights, and directions.

Safety is paramount at the 2010 Invitational. Responsible firearm handling is the order of the day as international competitors, instructors and long time shooting actors and directors will counsel and supervise those celebrities new to the sport.

"It's absolutely fun and challenging, a sport that anyone can enjoy," said Uncommon Dialogue Films CEO, actor Patrick Kilpatrick.

Celebrities receive mandatory safety and shooting clinic instruction with a state of the art loaner shotgun for the day after the red carpet and 5-star breakfast. Participants walk the course, or travel by golf-car from station-to station with some stops sporting extra activities and special treats for added fun and adventure.

Competitors will shoot a total of 100 clays split into two-parts with a break for a gourmet picnic lunch. At the end of the event everyone gathers for a casual cocktail party, awards ceremony, and eclectic live auction.

Honors include top, runner up and third place male and female shooter, top, runner up and third place male and female celebrity shooter. No one walks away empty handed as gift-bags full of eco outdoor sport activity items are waiting for everyone.

The day begins with the Red Carpet, Team Assignments, Safety Clinic, and 5-star cuisine.

What can a celebrity or shooter expect at the Hollywood Invitational? Extraordinary camaraderie, superb food, in-depth, easy to follow instruction, breathtaking shooting exhibitions, shotgun games, a healthy dose of easy going competition, an early evening cocktail reception, awards ceremony immediately following the event, and a lovely outdoor/green gift bag for one and all.

International Shooters include Olympian, National, and World Champions and all around recreational shooters (many from Hollywood itself) who will purchase $500.00 single entry tickets or $1800 for a team of 4 (with VIP treatment) to join celebrities to benefit the charity event. Triple B Clays Shotgun Sporting Park is located at 831 Rosemead Blvd - El Monte, CA 91733-4211.

“It really is time the green movement and shooting/outdoor sports which contribute so much to conservation are joined together with Hollywood glamour” noted Kilpatrick.
